But Albert Hakiro, in his third day of testimony before the congressional committees investigating the affair, referred to the arms sales as a "business situation," He said the members of the enterprise, including General Secord, had tried to "maximize our profits" in the final arms sale.

Mr. Hakim said withdrawals totaling $113,317 had been made by General Secord from bank accounts that included profits from the arms sales to Iran. It was Mr. Hakim who organized the financial Under questioning from a commutee counsel, Arthur Liman, Mr. Hakim said that $31,817 of the money went for the Porsche, and when asked if the car was for personal use, replied: "That is the right conclusion." Mr. Hakim also confirmed that an additional $52,000 was used to buy a Piper Seneca airplane for General Secord in October 1985.

The testimony also indicated that General Second and Mr. Hakim used $250,000 for investments proposed by General Secord, induding interests in a machine gun company, a food processing company and to make a timber deal.

Mr. Hakim said under questioning that he was not prepared to turn over to the U.S. Treasury S8 million in profits from the arms sale that is still held in Swiss bank accounts

Mr. Hakim also testified that because "we wanted to maximize our profits," the enterprise made a 40 percent profit on its last deal, worth 52.1 million, in 1986.

In addition, the first detailed summary of arms sales to Adolfo Calero, a top Nicaraguan rebel leader, was released Friday. It showed that the network run by General Second and Mr. Hakim sold arms to the contras at markups as high as 60 percent.

The documents included records of transactions in which the Hakim-Secord operation hought 81mm mortar cartridges for $29.50 each and sold them to Mr. Calero for $48, and bought rifle ammunition at 595 per thousand rounds, selling it at $124.

General Secord has restified that he personally forswore any profits. But he has also said, in an interview, that there was a markup of between 20 percent and 30 percent for the company run hy himself and Mr. Hakim hecause "this was a business, not a philanthropic undertaking.

Testimony of Spain Bans New South Africa Dealings

MADRID (Combined Dispatches) — Spain banned on Friday new direct investment in South Africa to press for the abolition of apartheid, a spokesman for the Foreign Ministry said.

The ban would bring Spanish companies in line with European Community policy. The spokesman said the ban did not apply to existing investment or to investment by multinational companies in which Spanish companies had interests.

The U.S. Catholic Conference announced on Thursday that it would rid itself of $5.3 million in investments in American companies that continue to do business in South Africa.

Of Grueling Welcome The New York Times pub-lished the following letter from Jan J. van Willegen of Baarn, the

For years, I have visited New York on business and have been obliged to go through the long. initating procedure of clearing United States Customs and Immigration. My most recent trip

At the booths, agents rored through huge, me-dieval-looking books which, amazingly, have not been replaced by computers.

If the government truly wants to encourage travel to the United States - whether for business or tourism - there must be a better way of demonstrating it. I feel certain that if American travelers to Europe were treated as we are here, it would be considered intolerable. It is to be hoped that our courtesies toward United States visitors will, some day soon, be returned in kind.

Short Takes

When Paul A. Volcker resigned this week as chairman or the Federal Reserve Board, he had acquired the reputation of being "the second most powerful man in the country." But he appears to have no aspirations to becoming the first most powerful. Although Mr. Volcker, 59, a Democrat, is widely credited with having superb political skills, he has never run for office. A spot check around Washington by Robert C. Siner of the International Herald Tribune drew comments like "the chances are zero," "inconceivable" and "it's the last thing be would do." A spokesman at the Fed, Joseph Coyne, laughed at the question, adding that Mr. Volcker has "not considered running for the presidency or any other political office" and has "not given any thought" to his future plans.

New York City has adopted an "inclusionary zoning" plan designed to make it easier for low-income families to stay in a neighborhood where luxury

It was for this purpose that Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger met Thursday in Nice, France, with the Saudi defense minister, Prince Sultan bin Abdul Aziz. According to the Saudi Embassy in Washington, "needs of the kingdom" were discussed, an indication that the arms sales came up. Administration officials said they doubt the Saudis want to risk getting into combat on behalf of the United States without some assurance that U.S. arms will be forthcoming. "It's a reciprocal relationship, said an administration official.

They can provide some help, if they have the political will. They have to have confidence in our staying power." "This is a test," he said of the WASHINGTON (UPI) -Several hundred people stood in protest, shouting comments and laughing during the U.S. health and human services sec retary's remarks Friday at the conclusion of the Third Interoational Conference on AIDS.

In face of the protest, the secretary, Otis R. Bowen, added a final comment to his prepared speech: "I really don't object to your protest." he said. "I shall not turn my back on the probfem of AIDS or the people who have it."

The protesters, many of them medical researchers, appeared to be following the lead of a flyer circulated beforehand. The flyer said that President Ronald Reagan's administra-

The intensity of the dehate over Peptide T has arisen in part because the tests of its ability to slow the AIDS virus have been conduct-

• Infection by a newly discovered type of AIDS virus is spreading across Europe, has appeared in South America and may occur inthe rest of the Americas, a French researcher has warned.

Dr. Luc Montagnier of the Pasteur Institute in Paris, a discoverer of the original AIDS virus, said. Thursday that a few cases of infectioo with HIV-2, the newcomer, have been detected in France, West Germany, Britain and Sweden. Two cases of infection have been reported in São Paulo. (UPI)

Lies and More Lies

Two patterns emerge starkly from the Iran-contra hearings: of deception and selfenrichment. The Reagan administration admits, with painful reluctance, that it misinformed Congress and the public about its secret activities in Nicaragua. Just as reluctantly, participants in the arms supply operation to the contras reveal bow they used the cloak of secrecy for private gain.

These patterns contain ugly questions that do not stop with Elliott Abrums, the assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs. and Lieutenant Colonel Oliver North. Congress finds it understandably difficult to believe Mr. Abrams. Yet Secretary of State George Shultz gives him his "full and complete confidence." And although Colonel North appears to have received a variety of personal benefits, from life insurance to snow tires, President Reagan has yet to modify his view of him as "a national hero,"

Last Nov. 25, Mr. Abrams told Congress that the administration had not raised funds for the contras from other countries. That was untrue. Truthful answers might have led Congress to uncover the White House-sponsored "private" arms network, Mr. Abrams fenced and fibbed even as the White House was announcing the diversion of Iran arms money and the discharging of Colonel North, Mr. Abrams now says he lacked "authority" to divulge that deal. He had swom to keep secret the Sultan of Brunei's contribution of $10 million. Committee members rightly replied that Mr. Abrams had no right to promise such secrecy, and certainly had no duty to lie about it in testimony.

The White House and Mr. Abrams blundered by not delivering the money to the needy Nicaraguan rebels. Mr. Abrams now polishes that blunder into a defense. He Deceit and Enrichment contends that since the money had not arrived it was sent to the wrong Swiss bank rived - it was sent to the wrong Swiss bank account - be could legitimately deny that it had been raised. For good measure, he took a week to ponder his deceptions before acknowledging his error to Congress.

More: Last fall the Nicaraguan supply mission was exposed by the downing of the plane bearing Eugene Hasenfus, the American cargo chief. At the time, Mr. Abrams categorically denied that the administration was involved. His defense? He didn't know about it. Why? Because, he now admits, be consciously refused to inform himself despite orders from Mr. Shultz to keep tabs on Colonel North. He now employs his supposed ignorance to contend that he truly believed his inaccurate public assurances.

Layers of lies. Testimony this week also revealed that a Catholic priest who once told Congress that Sandinists had dressed up as contras to commit atrocities was himself a fake priest. And who arranged for his congressional appearance, in costume? None other than Colonel North.

Other testimony further sullies the colo-nel's image as a selfless patriot. His private partners in the arms enterprise, Richard Secord and Albert Hakim, seem to have provided him with a $200,000 package of fringe benefits and made him heir to $2 million in arms profits. And he seems to have extracted money for groceries and snow tires from travelers' checks intended for the contras.

Congress has a right to wonder how any honorable dealings are possible with Mr. A brams, who even now makes no pledge to be more curious or careful, or with a secretary of state whose spokesman describes Mr. Abrams as "sensational." Congress must wonder also about the judgment of a president who has yet to disown Colonel North. - THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Congress Can't Accept

The testimony of Elliott Abrams was in many respects the most revealing and painful yet heard in the Iran-contra hearings. Here was a ranking State Department official showing himself to be an enthusias: so committed to the pursuit of a challenged policy that he had been prepared to set aside considerations -- factuality, openness, the building of trust - that should be the basic and normal stuff of government business, especially when the policy is hotly contested.

The assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs presented himself as the scrupulous and unoffending or minimally offending victim of an administration's division of labor in which the State Department bad only one walled-off part, and perhaps not the principal part, of the president's Nicaragua policy. But to conduct his assigned business and meanwhile keep himself plausibly in the dark about the rest, traces of which were to be seen almost everywhere, was truly a meticulous and demanding labor. Mr. Abrams performed it with a diligence that alternately saddened and enraged those who beard his tale.

Certainly a measure of political vengeance was taken on the essentially unrepentant Mr. Abrams by some who questioned him. Congress, after all. is embarrassed to have failed so dismally in its duty of oversight. And it recurrently provided the administration with revised rules of the game, which it had to know was being played right up to the edge of what was allowed. The main thrust of the questioning, however, fell elsewhere. "We cannot advance United States interest if public officials who testify before the Congress resort to legalisms and word games. claim ignorance about things they either know about or should know about and at critical points tell the Congress things that are not true," said chairman Lee Hamilton. To us, this summary of congressional sennment was neither partisan por narrowly pro-ment of democratic policy making. Mr. Abrams at once received a ringing endorsement from Secretary of State George Sbultz, But Congress has made clear that it cannot accept the kind of relanonship with the State Department and the administration as a whole that emerged from Mr. Abrams's reluctant testimony.

The Greenspan Board

Alan Greenspan will take over the chair-manship of the Federal Reserve Board at a time when the board is, by any historical lism that is always a part of this administrastandard, conspicuously weak. The chief deuou's economics, as well as the intention to fect is inexperience. While the chairman usu- build an opposition to Mr. Volcker and the ally gets most of the public attention, there are in fact seven seats at the table, and all members' votes count equally in the decisions that set America's monetary policy.

Central banking is an esoteric and specialized business. For that reason, members' terms are set by statute at 14 years, with one term expiring every other year. But an unusual cycle of resignations has disrupted that orderly progression. Except for the outgoing chairman. Paul Voicker, no member of the present board has as much as three years' tenure: only one member bas more than 18 months on the board, and one seat is vacant.

As recently as five years ago, the board was very much a mandarinate. All but one of the seven members were professional economists. Most had worked at staff level in the Federal Reserve System before their appointments, and a couple had spent most of their careers there. As a group they represented a very high level of expertise and intellectual capacity; the board's great shortcoming in those years was a lack of representation of the world that it regulates.

consensus of experts over which he presided Several of the present members have had experience in commercial banking, but the Federal Reserve's work takes it into areas that commercial bankers rarely visit.

The complexity of the board's work bas increased sharply in the last 15 years. Rapid swings in interest rates have made the basic job of managing the money supply far more difficult. The Latin American debts have greatly expanded the Federal Reserve's role in a particularly fast-moving and demanding kind of diplomacy. Among its other responsibilities, the Fed is one of the regulators of the banking system, which draws it deeply into the fierce struggle over the banking legislation now before Congress.

Having created a Federal Reserve Board that is very new to most of these issues, the administration cannot do much about it but let time and education take their course. When it begins to think about filling that vacant seat, it might want to consider, for the sake of balance, looking for a mandarin.

Segovia Was Here

"Anyone who desires to survive into vigorous old age," Donal Henahan, music critic of The New York Times, wrote last year, "can improve his chance dramatically by arranging to be born with extraordinary talent as a musical performer." Andres Segovia, like Pablo Casals and Arthur Rubinstein, made such an arrangement. When he died this week at 94, be was watching television with his 17-year-old son - and perhaps wondering when he could reschedule the Carnegie Hall appearance he had to cancel last month. He said once that he wanted to redeem the guitar from flamenco, create a repertory and public and win for it "a respected place in the great music schools along with the piano, the violin and other concert instruments." He did all that and more. There are millions who might not have been introduced to Bach and Scarlatti, Haydn and Mozart if they had not first been introduced to Segovia.

They met him when they were young, hanging out not at concerts but in beatnik coffee houses and college dormitories. They listened to the intricate, delicate, powerful recordings and dreamed of capturing the sound on their own guitars, and they shushed anyone who dared speak or crumple a paper. The famous "Segovia husb embraced the dorm room as surely as it did the concert hall. Today one can hear street musicians playing Bach. "Ah." the listener says to herself. "Segovia was here."

Today's disagreements seem to center more on the degree of action needed and on the distribution of responsibilities between the major actors. Unfortunately, there is a tendency to try to shift the main burden of responsibility onto somebody else. The trend toward mutual recrimination across the Atlantic and the Pacific must be turned around.

Sizable stimulative packages are signaled, but continued fiscal consolidation is stressed. Again, this makes it hard to interpret policy intentions. Clearer signals are needed from the Japanese government of its willingness to expand domestic demand substantially, along with more precise information on concrete measures. The credibility of economic policy in Japan and West Germany would not suffer from an announced willingness to stimulate domestic demand on a larger scale than hitherto contemplated. On the contrary, such policy action would encourage real confidence in the determination of governments to bring about a policy-led adjustment and resist further changes in exchange rates.

Gorbachev: Toward a Face-Lift for the Soviet Bloc

M OSCOW — One of the ironies of Mikhail Gorbachev's "openness" and "restructuring" program is the impact on the Soviet bloc.

The regime that the Red Army installed in Czechoslovakia in 1968 to put an end to Prague's version of such reforms now bas cool relations with Moscow's leader. So do the East German and Bulgarian regimes, not to speak of Romania, which is so Stalinist that it is scarcely in the same generation. The public in East Germany and Czechoslovakia. on the other band, has shown considerable enthusiasm for Mr. Gorbachev's ideas, which is an important reason why their leaders are not pleased. People in both countries flock to buy the official Soviet press, for the first time, and the East German party paper Neues Deutschland occasionally censors the ssages on glasnosi in Mr. Gorbachev's speeches. Passages on glasnosi in Mr. Contractive s operated When he was in East Berlin last week, he was treated Warsaw Past as just another participant in the Warsaw Pact summit meeting, not the great leader of the camp, The regime that the Red Army threatened in Poland in 1981, until martial law was declared, is now General Secretary Gorbachev's closest friend in the bloc. Hungary is also cheering him on. He offers more room for its domestic reforms and better prospects for reconciling its people.

So there is a new kind of diversity in East European relations with Moscow, Obviously, the Soviet leader would prefer more support. But be has declared that there is no longer any "center" in the bloc, that each member is equally autonomous to of some Communist parties toward reviving the work out its problems in its own way, although big brother is certainly still biggest.

It is not only "new thinking," in the Soviet jargon, that restrains the Soviet leader from pressing the others to reform. The last thing he would like to see is upheaval in the camp. It would probably bring his downfall, so it is not in his interest to push too hard. The Hungarian revolution in 1956, and the Polish defiance that preceded it, were in large part a result of Nikita Khrushchev's attempt to bring more modest reforms in the Soviet Union, although be never urged the others to follow him, But Mr. Gorbachev clearly would like to revive some kind of world Communist forum. Since the break with China in the 1950s, Moscow has never been able to convoke a worldwide meeting of Communist parties. It has not even been able to get all the European parties together since the East Berlin summit meeting in 1975, where Sannago Carrillo of Spain said to Leonid Brezhnev's face, "Moscow is not our Rome, and October is not our Christmas."

Said a Polisb diplomat in Moscow: "It's an anomaly, The Socialists, the Christian Democrats, the Liberals, they all have international meetings. Only the Communists can't." In a recent interview with the Italian Communist paper L'Unità, Mr. Gorbachev said be saw "no reason for the cantion" tradition of meetings. This was a clear gibe at the Italians, who are wary of an appearance of re-newed subjection to Moscow. They took the position that any conference should include Socialists, Social Democrats and liberation movements.

Mr. Gorbachev seemed to go along, calling for ringing together all kinds of "progressives," with a demand for preventing nuclear war to be "their core, their pivot." He said representatives of various parties would be invited to Moscow for the 70th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution this year, and that he would propose "an informal meeting for extensive discussion of the key issues that concern the whole world ... without any document whatsoever and without any summing up of results."

East European diplomats consider this a test to see if a more formal conterence is feasible, and they doubt it. Some West European diplomats see it as an attempt to set up a new popular front on a global basis, reminiscent of the 1930s Soviet collaboration with non-Communist leftist parties in Europe. All this is part of the longer-term effort to restore Soviet prestige and appeal by improving the country's living standards and its reputation abroad.

Refurbishing the ideology and recapturing the allegiance of "progressives" is an integral part of Mr. Gorbachev's campaign. As he told the Italians. the "bourgeois press" is all wrong if it thinks he is out for Western-style democracy. That is not just in reassure worried comrades. He means it.

Peres: Out on a Limb Hawking a Peace Conference

By Dominique Moïsi

PARIS - Abba Eban thinks the time is ripe for another Middle East conference. In a column on this page on May 25, the former Israeli foreign minister argued that conditions are optimal for a negotiation that he sees as the only alternative to a disastrous and explosive deadlock.

Mr. Eban is right to want to break the deadlock, and also in his conviction that no durable solution can exclude the Soviet Union. But it is far breakthrough are as good as be describes them - that a window of opportunity justifies Foreign Minister Shimon Peres's bold reliance on an international peace conference.

All the more so since members of the administration resent the return of the Soviet Union as a Middle East player. Increasingly, the United States tends state: he cannot commit Jordan to peace alone, in the way Egypt committed itself. Syria, despite its economic weakness, difficulties in Lebanon and conditions were present that do not to look at the Middle East as an area reduced margin of diplomatic maneunity. America has a role to play but at way to peace. The Palestinians are deeply weakened by the loss of a military base in Lebanon. There is no serious alternative to the PLO, but is it realistically an interlocutor, given its deep divisions and lack of credibility?

Israel, beyond its political divisions. is a country united by fear. The extreme right cultivates an ideological religious, sometimes racist vision of history and wants to keep all the occupied territories; the extreme left wants to return the territories at almost any price. But most Israelis are deeply tora as to the nature of their security. In the absence of a charismatic leader who could give a sense of direction, they are condemned to cling to the status quo as the best of all options.

Israelis have a serious problem of political leadership. Small Israel had a great statesman, David Ben-Gurion. 'Great" Israel has known only small politicians. Israel's young elites tend to go into business, given the unattraciveness of Israeli party politics.

All this is deeply worrying for a country whose right to exist is still contested. The acceleration of tower building in the Israeli landscape looks like a symptom of escapism.

In the Middle East, opportunities for peace are so rare that they must be seized. But if noble concerns are based on false assumptions or wishful thinking, the price of failure would be the defeat of peace seekers in Israel. It would be a tragic irony of history if Mr. Peres's dedication to peace were to serve the ambinons of Ariel Sharon.

er's Conservatives win their expected third term, you can expect the Republicans to adopt her themes of growth, ownership and national pride in 1988. Republican National Chairman

Frank J. Fahrenkopf Jr. went to Lon-

This year again, differences seem more striking than similarities. The Conservatives have Mrs. Thatcher at their head, and she is, although conproversial, untainted by serious scandal. Republicans have a lame duck president damaged by the Iran-contra affair and are uncertain who will lead them into the 1988 election.

Mrs. Thatcher faces divided opposi-tion, in Labor and the Liberal-Social Democratic Alliance, and the pre-elec-tion polls make her party the favorite to retain its parliamentary majority. In Washington, the Republicans no long-er control either house of Congress and the early surveys suggest, however shakily, that Democrats may hold the favorite's role for 1988.

"I'm not sure we can take comfort if she wins," Mr. Fahrenkopf remarked. "But her campaign certainly is helpful in understanding how voters react to certain facts and certain appeals."

The main theme is economic growth without inflation. The Conservative manifesto says Britainis in the seventh successive year of steady economic growth. "We have moved from the bottom to the top of the growth league of major European powers ... Since the Conservatives took office produc-tivity in British manufacturing has grown faster than in any other major industrialized country."

In the week the Tories' manifesto appeared, the Republican National Committee issued a "special edition" of one of its publications, asserting that "America is in the midst of a period of unparalleled economic progress and job growth ... We've created more than 13 million new jobs."

Prosperity is a traditional boast of parties in power, and if the American economy remains healthy into 1988, you will certainly hear the Republicans taking credit for it. Of greater interest to the party is Mrs. Thatcher's effort to redefine and realign the traditional class basis of British politics.

She has used every tool to make the average family think of itself as owning a piece of the nation's future. Tories claim there are 2.5 million more home-owning families than in 1979, a million of them former tenants of public housing who were aided in buying the units they occupied. The number of stockholders has trebled, many of the new capitalists being employees of formerly nationalized industries now returned to private ownership.

Pre-election polls showed Torics winning among working class voters who had become home-owners and stockholders. If those gains are confirmed on Thursday, you can expect to see a similar effort in America, with Republican candidates arguing that the tax cuts and investment incentives of the Reagan years have given many more families "a share in America."

For all the current preoccupation in Washington with the Iran-contra hearings, history suggests that basic economic issues are likely to count more heavily at election time. Democrats, like Mrs. Thatcher's opponents, assert that conservative policies have damaged the standing of the middle class. But if Mrs. Thatcher wins the argument on her side of the Atlantic, the Republicans will gain important clues on how to win it in America.

The Associated Press OTTAWA - Canada, declaring its armed forces in danger of "rust out" after decades of neglect, announced Friday an ambitious military buildup, including the acquisitinn of 10 to 12 nuclear-powered submarines.

A white paper introduced in Parliament by Defense Minister Perrin Beatty also said Canada would cancel its "unsustainable commitment" to send a brigade and two fighter squadrons to Norway in

The 5,000 troops will be deployed in an emergency with Canada's main NATO force of 6,900 in West Germany, Mr. Beatty said.

The 90-page document pledged a minimum real growth of 2 percent in military spending over the next 15 years — a pledge valued at $136 billion - with additional sums for special programs, such as the nuclear submarines.

General Paul Manson, chief of the defense staff, said the military got everything it wanted in the nation's first comprehensive military review in 16 years.

The plan calls for creation of a "three-ocean navy" with a balance between nuclear-powered submarines, surface vessels and patrol air-

The submarines, estimated to cost $300 million to $375 million each, would be delivered from 1996 to 2010, Mr. Manson said.

Military officials have said that French Rubis-class and British Trafalgar-class subs are the leading contenders but that about 65 percent of the work would be done in Canada.

The white paper also disclosed plans to develop new sonar systems for under-ice surveillance in the Arctic, and research into space surveillance against missile attack.

Canada will establish its first military base in the High Arctic, and increase its armed forces reserves from 51,000 to 90,000.

The nuclear submarines would carry conventional weapons in line with Canada's nonnuclear policy, hut only nuclear propulsion will enable them to patrol under the ice for long periods.

The Viennese critics have declared the play is skillful in its dramaturgy and disunguished in its dialogue, which ranges from the sardonic humor of the start to a note of lyricism in its closing passages. They predict that it will join Albee's great successes. Klaus Maria Brandauer's Ham-

Japanese Invade the 'Nouveau' Market

PARIS — The Japanese progression on the art market is beginning to reach the dimensions of an invasion.

The role of Japanese buyers has long been acknowledged in specialist areas, such as antiquities from Buddhist Asia or Chinese art. This was looked upon in Western art circles with condescending approv-al. Buddhism being the predominant religion in Japan, and Chinese art an essential component of its aesthetic horizon at virtually all times of its history, these acquisinons could be seen as part of a search for a distant heritage. The next step, Impressionist and modern art, again failed to leave a significant impression on Western consciousness. The readiness of the Japanese trade to gobble up some of the less inspired artists of the Paris school as well as the worst daubs of Impressionism may explain this lack of reaction in the early stages. Since then, however, the fine tuning of their art buying has been ceaseless.

In March, a new stage was reached when a Japanese corporate museum acquired van Gogh's Sunflowers" for £24.75 million ($39.9 million) at Chrisne's. This too was misread. The focus in the media was on the extravagance of the price, rather than on the quality of the art. Its significance in the longer perspective was missed -"Sunflowers" is arguably the most important Western painting acquired by a Japanese buyer since World War II.

century decorative art. It started slowly, in the mid-1970s, stepped up four years ago, and has now moved into high gear. It is happening on a huge scale of which even professionals are largely unaware. The latest episode took place at the Droug auction house on May 20-browsed around the flea market and those daringly offbeat galler-ies, such as Gabrielle Lory on Quai Voltaire, that went in for Art Nouveau, then totally ignored. Within 15 years, the banker had gathered an astonishing group of 95 glass pieces by Emile Galle, whose name still lingered in the public mind. and numerous works by other glassmakers whose names meant nothing to anyone then and still remain unknown to all hut a handful of specialists. Eugène Michel, in particular, is so utterly forgotten that when the Haus der Kunst in Munich put together its mammoth 1972 exhibition "World Cultures

Bocquet also picked up pieces by the Muller brothers, stoneware by many famous craftsmen of the 1900s, furniture by Galie, Louis Majorelle and others - the works, when no one knew what the works meant. He died and many years later the family decided to part with the collection.

It could have been a disaster. The partners handling the auction, Bernard Oger and Etienne Dumont, run a modest business across the street from Drouot on a hudget commensurate to their size and ambitions - small. When Marcilhac, who has been dealing in 20th-cen-21 at the sale of an unusual collectury decorative art for a quarter of tion. Aghast, Marcilhac took the matter in hand. The sale was scheduled to start May 20. He flew to Tokyo and spent five days in Japan from May 9 to 14 doing his rounds, catalogues at the ready, from collector to dealer, from major museums in the capital to little known institutions in the provinces. On D-day, he made sure that a Japanese interpreter would read out the anouncements on sales procedures in Japanese. Drouot being Drouot, the sound system failed almost from the beginning. The seats were laid out in such a way that ooce you

But Marcilhac's intensive canvassing paid. It resulted in what vill remain as a landmark in the long-term transformation of the art market. Out of 95 pieces of Galle glass, Marcilhae reckons that at least 60 percent in lot numbers and 80 percent in value went to Japan. A precise figure cannot be given at this point, he notes, because the Japanese systematically cover their tracks when buying at auction. In the present case, Marcilhac himself got a number of commission bids. A Tokyo gallery, Belle des Belles. bought many pieces, some for stock and others reputedly in behalf of museums. Middlemen also acted in behalf of various Japanese clients so that eventually the count might show the Japanese role to be bigger Heading the band was the Kitazawa Museum at Suwa. Marcilhac says that the museum, which started buying on his advice a decade ago, has the finest collection of 20th-century French glass outside France. In March 1984, it acquired the most important vase by Daum seen in years, at an auction held in Tokyo by the Paris auctioneering partners Ader-Picard-Tajan. The object, 47 centimeters (18.5 inaignée, Hommage à Victor Hugo" and dated 1910, went for a record 60.5 million yen (about $270,000 at the time).

At the May 20 sale this year, the museum bought, via the Belle des Belles gallery, one of the most beautiful vases by Gallé made in 1902-03. The tapering cylindrical shape rises from the lapis lazuli for 566,150 francs (then $68,365). The other main piece, also bought by the museum, was a large footed vase in the form of a floral chalice with applied roses handled in a free naturalistic manner.

The other Japanese buyers are oot immediately identifiable. According to a source in the trade, a Tokyo dealer called lwakura was underbidding the important vase decorated with sunflowers and inscribed with a quotation by Emile Zola, which the Paris dealer Jean-Claude Brugnot got for 258,256 francs, against an initial estimate of 30,000. Having missed that one. Iwakura made do with a 173,781franc vase that is actually more important — the model, called

"Aux Immortelles," was displayed at the Paris exhibition of 1900. It would be wrong to assume that the Japanese alone displayed interest at the Paris sale. At least one other institution was operating that day, but on a shoesting. Tracking trailian National Gallery of Melbourne, which has immense resources and has been building an ambitious collection of 20th-century painting, bought a rare stoneware vase of Japanese meining shape decorated with irises and signed jointly by Edonard Dammouse, the designer, and Ernest Chaplet. The price was 34,068 francs. It also acquired a pleasant if somewhat banal vase decorated with daffodils from the Galle factory for 39,164 francs. The reason: limit and could not go higher. The Americans, so active for many years, hardly took part in the game,

New York Plans Arts Festival

NEW YORK — More than 25 dance, theater, music and film programs from 16 nations have been engaged for the first New York International Festival of the Arts next June, Martin E. Segal, chairman of the festival, announced, Negotiations are under way for some 60 more.

The theme of the festival, scheduled for June 11 to July 11, 1988, is "The Performing Arts of the 20th

The opening week of the festival, which may become a hiennial or annual event, will include the premiere of a new ballet by American Ballet Theater and a gala concert by the New York Philharmonic.

Among the festival highlights, Jason Robards and Colleen Dewhurst are to star on Broadway in rotating productions of Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night" and "Ah, Wilderness!" and Mike Nichols is staging a new production of Samuel Beckett's "Waiting for Godot" at Lincoln Center Theater. The festival's schedule also includes the premieres of ballets by Merce Cunningham and Arthur Mitchell, a new work by the director, choreographer and playwright Martha Clarke, and an international film series at the Museum of Modern Art.

The theater component of the festival is to feature

Indonesia are to be featured in a performance of Franz Xaver Kroetz's "Request Konzert," a pantomime, at the Asia Society, and the New York Shakespeare Festival is presenting "Latino on Broadway," a new piece based on the work of Jorge Luis Borges. Contemporary American playwrights will be represented with new plays at off-Broadway theaters, under the stewardship of Curt Dempster, artistic director of the Ensemble Studio Theater. The Italian director Giorgio ches)high, titled "L'Ortie et l'Ar-Strehler is to direct two plays for the festival.

Music includes the New York premiere, in concert form, of "Punch and Judy," an opera by Harrison Birtwistle, and concerts by the Ensemble InterContemporain, under Pierre Boulez. The New York City Opera is to open its production of Franz Lehar's "Merry Widow." Several evenings of avant-garde music have been planned, and the festival will coincide with the JVC Jazz Festival.

In dance, Pina Bausch's Wuppertal Dance Theater and the Frankfurt Ballet are scheduled, and there are ing between tree trunks in low reto be performances of "A Day in the Life of Coney lief. The Marshall Plan: Would The Effort Be Made Today?

By LEONARD SILK

New York Times Service

EW YORK - A few days before President Ronald Reagan took off for Venice this week, he spoke in the East Room of the White House in honor of the memory of George C. Marshall on the 40th anniversary of the Marshall Plan. On June 5, 1947, Marshall, then the secretary of state, gave the commencement address at Harvard University, offering U.S. help for the reconstruction of war-scarred Europe. "Our policy," he said, "is not directed against any country or doctrine but against hunger, poverty, despotism and chaos."

The American commitment to the European Recovery Program was enormous. As Mr. Reagan said at the White House, in today's money — after allow-mg for inflation — it cost "about $60 billion." But that figure greatly understates what a burden comparable to the Marshall Plan would be for the United States today. The real gross national prod-uct has tripled since then, so an equivalent burdes now would be about $180 billion.

be making up for McCarthy's assault on the general as a virtual traitor.

Reagan appeared to

Could and would the United States make such an effort today? Fiscally it would be next to impossible — without a drastic change in the use of American resources. The federal budget in fiscal 1986 showed a deficit of $221 billion; optimists expect the deficit this year to be about $180 billion. And Gramm-Rudman constraints on the budget, aimed at producing a balanced budget by 1991, are severely squeezing foreign aid. The Reagan administration did increase foreign aid to a peak of $20.2 billion in 1985 from $9.6 billion in 1980. But the Gramm-Rudman budget cuts have since driven foreign aid down to $12.9 billion. While that still represents a 26 percent increase since 1980, John W. Sewell and Christine E. Conzee note in Foreign Affairs magazine that all foreign aid growth since 1980 has been in the area of security and military assistance; economic As long as the budgetary pie was expanding, they note, it was possible to put together a coalition in Congress to support foreign aid. Now, however, with the drive on to chop the deficit as a major cause of America's international trade and growth problems, the foreign-aid coalition has broken down. Congress cut the administration's aid request last year by 23 percent, and resources for the next few years are not likely to be more plentiful. T THE VENICE summit conference the administration will

A be pressing its allies for greater help on the economic and military fronts. In his own statement on the 40th anniversary of the Marshall Plan, Secretary of State George P. Shultz urged the allies "to note and act on the reality that the United States can no longer carry the largest share of the burden." The United States, Mr. Shultz said, has devoted a much larger proportion of its national budget to military spending than its allies have. It could once do this without strain, but the American economy no longer dominates the Western world. "The Marshall Plan helped to create equality between the two halves of the Atlantic alliance," he said, bu, today "we must share responsibilities equally."

In hailing Marshall as "a gallant soldier, a visionary statesman and an American who set a standard of honor and accomplishment for all who have followed," Mr. Reagan appeared to be making up for the assault on the general as a virtual traitor that was made by Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin in the early

Although Dwight D. Eisenhower was Marshall's protegé, as Forrest C. Pogue notes in his new book, "George C. Marshall: Statesman," Eisenhower failed, during his 1952 presidential campaign, to defend Marshall against the McCarthy charges of "pro-Communism." President Harry S. Truman was outraged by Eisenhower's deletion of support for Marshall from a speech he gave in Wisconsin. That deletion came at the request of Republican politicians, and Mr. Reagan went all out to erase that blot.

Unilever to Get $1.69 Billion

By Warren Getler International Herald Tribune LONDON — Imperial Chemi-cal Industries PLC said Friday that it had agreed to buy the Stauffer Chemical Co. subsidiary of Unil-ever PLC, the food and chemical giant, for $1.69 billion. The move will significantly broaden ICPs market presence in the U.S. agrochemical business. Stanffer is based in Westport, Con-

Under the agreement, ICI, the largest British industrial group, will pay cash for Stauffer and assume $233 million of its debt. The transaction, one of the largest agreed takeovers between two British companies, is expected to be completed in July.

The acquisition will propel ICI from sixth to third place among world agrochemical giants, following Ciba-Geigy of Switzerland and Bayer AG of West Germany.

The announcement boosted Unilever shares by 100 pence, to £31.83, on the London Stock Exchange. ICI shares, after some jittery trading, were little changed.

"ICI is paying a fair but full price," said linty Price, chemical industry analyst with brokers Barclays de Zoete Wedd in London, "but they're paying for a unique opportunity. Stauffer is a super fit, adding its strength in herbicides for com and rice to ICPs strength in herbicides for soya and cotton." With the agrochemical business of Stauffer added, ICI's agrochemical revenue this year should approach $1.5 billion.

Stauffer's specialty and bulk chemicals divisions probably will be sold, an ICI spokesman said.

Unilever had acquired Stauffer in December through its $3.1 bil-lion purchase of Chesebrough-Pond's Inc., the U.S.-based pharmaceuticals group. Unilever said then that it planned to sell Stauffer, Stauffer had 1986 pretax profit of $113 million on sales of $1.3 billion, Unilever said. The net book value of its assets was $500 million. For the current year, analysts ex-pect Stauffer's agrochemical business to post pretax profit of $45 million on sales of $450 million. Stauffer, with activities in and outside of the United States, is the largest Chesebrough unit sold by Unilever so far; others sold have raised almost $100 million. Prince, a sports product manu-facturer, and the Bass shoe company are also to be sold.

The jobless rate fell by a dramatic 0.3 percentage point in April. The number of unemployed people in May was 7.5 million, almost unchanged from April.

At 6.3 percent, the unemployment rate is 0.9 percentage point below its level of a year ago. About 800,000 fewer Americans are job-less than in May 1986. The civilian labor force in-

"Even though employment nor-mally increases strongly between April and May as outdonr activity picks up and young people enter the labor market, the size of the April-to-May change is probably somewhat exaggerated," said the commissioner of labor statistics, Janet L. Norwood.

The May payroll gains were es-sentially limited to the service side of the economy. Employment in hospital and business services, such as data processing, accounted for more than one-third of the gains. Employment in the finance, insurance and real estate sectors rose by about 15,000.

Manufacturing employment held steady at 19 million but construction employment "rose a little less than expected for this time of the year and, after seasonal adjustment, was down slightly from April," the Labor Department said.

Overtime in manufacturing rose to an average 3.8 hours per week in May, the highest since early 1978.

Including revisions that the department makes annually in the payroll survey estimates, the economy has created 1,091,000 jobs this year. For all of 1986, about 2.5 million jobs were created.

the mail-order division, but said it expects to realize a large gain. The beauty products market in Japan has steadily expanded in re-cent years, with hair coloring and cosmetics particularly gaining wide consumer acceptance. Avon said the sales would lift profits and be used to retire debt. Avon Japan, with sales of over $220 million a year, is among the largest and most profitable foreign cosmetics companies in Japan. Avon said it had been considering the sale of a portion of the Japanese subsidiary for more than a year.

It said the offering is expected to be completed within seven months. Avon said it retained Nomura Securities and Morgan Stanley & Co. to act as its investment advisors on the partial sale of the subsidiary.

NYSE Falls in Sleepy Trading

NEW YORK - Prices on the New York Stock Exchange drifted lower Friday in the slowest trading in more than five months, pulling back after the rally of the two previous

The Dow Jones industrial average, which gained nearly 59 points Wednesday and Thurs-day, fell 10,93 points to close at 2,326,15. That left the average with a net gain of 34.58 for the week. Declines led advances by an 8-7 ratio.

Volume was about 129.11 million shares, down from 140.30 million Thursday and the lightest total since 91.88 million on Jan. 2, the vear's first trading session.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was down

.64 at 293.45.

"The market roday was almost moribund," said Gerald Simmons, a managing director in the listed trading department at Smith Barney. Harris Upham & Co. "A few takeover stocks dominated the active lists, and that's indicative of a tired market." Mr. Simmons said.

Analysts said traders were generally pleased with the market's recent progress in the face of the impending change of leadership at the Federal Reserve Board, where Paul A. Volcker is to be replaced in August by Alan Greenspan. But they also noted disappointment over the low levels of trading volume that accompanied the advance, which suggested that many market participants were reluctant to commit them-

The Labor Department reported Friday morning that the civilian unemployment rate held steady at 6.3 percent last month. Several stocks gained ground on takeover rumors and speculation, including Federated Department Stores, up 23 at 50%, and Harnischfeger, up 18 at 19.

Echlin Manufacturing dropped 1/2 to 15% in active trading. On Thursday the company estimated lower earnings for the fiscal quarter that ended Sunday. Selected money-center bank stocks provided one of the few pockets of strength in the market. Citicorp picked up 11s to 5814; J.P. Morgan 11s to 451; Chemical New York 1 to 44, and Chase Manhattan % to 39%. However, Manufacturers Hanover slipped 1/4 to 43 and BankAmerica was down in at 10%.

Losers among the blue-chip industrials in-cluded International Business Machines, down 13s at 160; DuPont down 13s at 114%; Eastman Kodak, down 1% at 78%: Exxon, down 1¼ at 87%, and General Motors, down ½ at 85%. Nationwide volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 154.19 million shares. Prices were mixed in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange issues and mostly lower in over-the-counter trading.

Taiwan Bank Chief Urges U.S. To Ease Its Demands on Trade

TAIPEI — The central bank governor said Friday that the government bad done much to satisfy U.S. demands for economic bberaliza-satisfy U.S. demands for economic oberalization and that Washington should not ask for further steps to reduce Taiwan's trade surplus.

The governor, Chang Chi-cheng, said at a news conference that Taiwan had opened its markets by lowering trade barriers, allowed its currency to appreciate against the U.S. dollar and boosted its imports of U.S. goods.

"We have tried our best to satisfy the United States and its chould not pressure us any more."

States and it should not pressure us any more," he said.

The cabinet agreed Thursday to cut import tariffs on 331 items by an average of 32 percent.

Tariffs on 2,562 other products were slashed by up to 50 percent earlier this year in an effort directed mainly at reducing Taiwan's trade surplus with the United States.

The bilateral surplus reached $4.98 billion in the first four months of this year, compared with $3.86 billion in the year-earlier period.

Mr. Chang said that the nie of the Taiwan dollar against the U.S. dollar would belp reduce the surplus. Since September 1985, the Taiwan dollar has risen by more than 22 percent against the U.S. currency.

the U.S. currency.

But he added, "Some political opportunists in the United States think the rise is not enough."

South Korean Car Exports Rose 137% in May From Year Earlier Agence France-Presse

SEOUL — Sparked by strong sales in the United States and Canada, South Korean automobile exports soared to 61,400 in May, up 137 percent from May 1986, officials said Friday. Exports for the first five months of the year totaled 184,800, 63.6 percent above the 1986 period, when 112,900 cars were shipped.

South Korea's top automaker, Hyundai, exported 45,300 automobiles last month, while Daewoo shipped 10,800 and Kia shipped 5,300. The three plan to export 650,000 cars this year.

Growth of French GDP Slowed To 0.1% in Year's First Quarter

PARIS — French gross domestic product grew by 0.1 percent in the first three months of 1987, the National Statistics Institute said Friday. The government has predicted a 2 percent expansion of GDP for the year.

The first-quarter figure followed growth of 0.4 percent in the last quarter of 1986 and 0.1 percent in the first quarter of 1986, the institute said.

U.S., Canada Resolve Dispute on Trade Data The Associated Press

OTTAWA — Canadian and U.S. officials have reached a compromise on the exact size of Canada's 1986 merchandisc trade sur-plus, Statistics Canada said Thursday. The figure was the sub-ject of a dispute at a time of negotiations on a proposed free-trade pact between the world's largest trading partners.

The two nations have agreed that Canada had a surplus of 18.4 billion Canadian dollars ($13.7 bil-lion) in the trade of goods with the United States. Canada originally estimated its surplus at 15.8 billion dollars while U.S. officials put the figure at 31.8 billion dollars.

7.000 Yugoslavia Firms Could Face Bankruptcy

BELGRADE — If Yugoslavia strictly applied a new law scheduled to take effect in July, more than 7.000 companies might go bankrupt, a newspaper calculated.

Vecernje Novosti said Thursday that 1.6 million workers could love their jobs under the bankruptey statute. It said that $1.44 billion in losses were accumulated in the first quarter of 1987 by the 7,000 com-

Sales of office antomation equipment in Italy account for about 15 percent of Toshiba's turnover in Енгорс.

The new company, Toshiba Information Systems (Italia) SpA. based in Milan, will employ about 70 local personnel in the initial stage of operations. It expects sales of $24 million this year.

The new company will sell plain-paper copiers and facsimile ma-chines, some of which will be manufactured at Toshiba's joint venture in France, company officials said.

Toshiba previously marketed office automation equipment in Italy through its wholly owned West German subsidiary, Toshiba Enropa GmbH.

The new venture, capitalized at $2.1 million, is the company's fourth subsidiary in Europe, fol-lowing those in West Germany, Britain and France.

lo this authoritative and fascinating biography of the emperor (an updated version of the 1966 editioo) Anthony Birley defines his task as "the simple one of recording Marcus's life as accurately as possible, setting him in his cootext and allowing him to speak for himself." He draws expertly on a fund of evidence that is richer for the life of Marcus than for that of any other of the "good emperors": the imperial coinage, with its portraits and commemorations of events of the reign; inscriptions from all parts of the empire; legal compilations (which include many imperial pronouncements); the testimony of contemporaries, such as the physician Galen and the orator Aelius Aristides; the late biography included in that strange miscellany of possible fact and blatant fiction known as the "Historia Augusta"; and, most important of all, the words of Marcus himself. We have a considerable number of letters from his Latin correspondence with his tutor

Fronto and also the notes, written in Greek during the last years of his life, which are generally known as "The Meditations" but which first appear in our traditioo under the title (whether it was given to them by Marcus himself we do not know) "To Himself."

MARCUS AURELIUS A Biography

By Anthony Birley, 320 pages, $25. Yale University Press, 302 Temple Street, New Haven, Conn. 06520.

Reviewed by Bernard Knox

DENNIS THE MENACE

WHEN Plato, jo "The Republic," foresaw no end of troubles for human communities unless philosophers became kings or kings philosophers, be was thinking of small city-states like his native Athens, or Syracuse, where his attempt to raise a young despot as philosopher ended in dismal failure. He could hardly have imagined that six centuries after his day a man trained as a philosopher and devoted to philosophy would become sole ruler of an empire that stretched from Spain and Scotland in the West to Syria and Egypt in the east, including within its boundaries the future sites of Bonn,

Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, who assumed power at Rome in A.D. 161, was the last of the "Five Good Emperors," the successor of Nerva, Trajan, Hadrian and Antoninus Pius. Edward Gibbon, in a famous sentence, described the years of their reigns (A.D. 96 to A.D. 180) as "the period in the history of the world during which the condition of the human race was most happy and prosperous." Though modern historians have found fault with this judgment as too geoerous, it is still true that oever before had this huge area enjoyed uninterrupted peace for so long a time - nor, unhappily, has it managed to do so since. But it fell to the lot of Marcus to preside over the last years of this golden age; his death in 180 ushered in what a coolemporary historian called "a kingdom of iron and rust."

Unlike his immediate predecessors, Hadrian and Antoninus Pius, Marcus had to deal with major threats to the security and prosperity of the empire.
Rome's oorthern frootier had been quiet for more than half a ceotury but early in Marcus's reign, under increasing pressure from populations on the move from the east and north, the frontier tribes invaded Roman territory. They even succeeded at Aquileia, the great Roman base at the head of the of his life he had to face this recurring danger, he spent seven years away from Rome campaigning in
